Product Description

This equipment is special press-fit equipment designed for the automobile shock absorber oil seal to be pressed into the oil seal seat. The equipment is mainly of a frame, an air pressure system, a pressing system, and an electronic control system. The equipment frame is welded by hollow steel pipes, and the electronic control system uses a touch screen controller for control operation. It is equipped with a pressure sensor and a displacement sensor for measuring pressure loading force and displacement. The equipment features a cylinder to provide power for press-fitting and press the oil seal into the oil seal seat. This equipment can be used for high-volume, high-quality continuous production without special training for operators.
